

May 5th 2020,

2020 the year of the CoronaVirus. This virus has been quite an adventure for probably all of us but this is about how the corona adventure has been for me. The virus has been a lot to adjust to and I have been learning to deal with changes because like wearing a mask to anywhere is probably going to be the new thing. At Least people are starting to relax, the first week they heard about this everyone was going crazy and trying to get everything they would need and were planning for the worst thing possible to happen because of this virus. It was hard not to be able to talk to people like in real life sense this virus. Like I am so used to being able to go to school and be able to have a conversation with my friends but now I am used to talking to them through facetime because that is the only form of being able to talk to people because of this quarantine. Overall this quarantine has made me very good at the video games I play because I am literally doing them every day because there is nothing else to do because I can see friends or anything else I would normally be doing. My parents had made me go outside at least 1 time a day so I dont go insane inside or they just sent me outside to leave them alone because I am annoying them apparently. I don't like going outside because like I can't even get close to people it's so weird. Everything is changing new rules everywhere and just new things because of a virus that has affected other people. To the kids who are reading this and you were not part of this time when the virus happened I feel very lucky for you because you probably would have been losing your mind just like the rest of us because you would be stuck in your house all day with nothing to do. While I was stuck in my house I realized how much I like school and how much I miss talking to my friends. But in conclusion the people who went through this will call it just a crazy memory because in the end we will all be working together to beat the virus.
