

Quarantine is an interesting time. I have found much more free time for myself. I made a design I am happy with in this time and I called it "Universal Quarantine". We have had to switch to online school. It isn't as great as people thought it would be. Most people want to actually go back to physical school and I somewhat agree. Online school does not allow you to do many things and it takes a long time to get used to. I have been doing a lot of things I didn't get the chance to though before. Each day a plane passes over our house to thank the people on the "front lines". Quarantine I have mixed feelings about.
